

ABANDON

A race that a race committee or protest committee abandons is void but may be resailed.

A race committee can abandon a race before it starts (rule 27.3, Other Race Committee Actions Before the Starting Signal), while it is under way (rule 32, Shortening or Abandoning After the Start) or even after one or more boats have finished (rule 32.1). To signal an abandonment on the water, the race committee will make three consecutive sound signals and display flag N (meaning return to the starting area for a new start), flag N over H (meaning return to the harbor and await further instructions) or flag N over A (meaning no more races that day). (See Race Signals.) A protest committee, acting on a request for redress, can abandon a race (rule 64.3, Decisions on Redress). A race that has been properly abandoned may be resailed.

N

N over H

N over A

Notice that once the race has started, the race committee is governed by rule 32 when deciding whether to abandon a race. Rule 32.1 lists the five scenarios in which the race committee may abandon a race:

- (a) because of foul weather,
- (b) because of insufficient wind making it unlikely that any boat will finish within the time limit,
- (c) because a mark is missing or out of position, or
- (d) for any other reason directly affecting the safety or fairness of the competition.

Rule 32.1 also states that the race committee may abandon a race because of an error in the starting procedure.

“Does rule 32.1(d) mean that the race committee can abandon a race in progress when a large wind shift occurs?”

Yes, when in its judgment the wind shift has made the race an unsatisfactory test of skill and therefore “unfair.” However, in my opinion it is desirable to reduce the number of subjective decisions a race committee can make once the race has started and it can see who is or isn’t doing well. Therefore, once a race has been started, race committees should make every attempt to anticipate and react to wind shifts and to reposition marks in order to keep the race “fair” before deciding to abandon, particularly after the first boat has rounded the first mark.

After at least one boat has started, sailed the course and finished within the race time limit, if any, the race committee and protest committee are required, before abandoning the race, to consider the consequences for all boats in the race or series (see rule 32 and Appeal 100).